SATURATION OF RECON MSNS

In January 1964, the community was averaging 1,000 missions of all types for peripheral reconnaissance: photo, comint, elint, radint, telemetry. Naturally a considerable backlog as far as analysis was concerned.

John McMahon in Collegation Guidance Staff meeting of 31 Jan 1964 queried χ magnitude of msns and whether ξ intel collected was not repetitious and overdone.

He suggested NIPE?Bross might attack the problem to see if economies could not be effected in numbers of these flights.

NRO review(s) completed.
